Police sound ringtone download

One of the biggest complaints about iOS is the severe shortage of SMS tons. If you're a jailbroken, however, you can easily add and manage those sounds as well as randomly own ringtones with a great utility called ToneFXs 2. Installing and configuring ToneFXs 2 is an excellent tool made by Efiko and is available through Cydia for $4.99, with a 15-day free trial. Open Cydia and search for ToneFXs 2 (Pro). Scroll down to see a list of features: When you're ready, tap install, see how you do it, and then, when prompted, rescrew. Find the ToneFXs icon and open it. If you also run BiteSMS, you'll see a message. Tap OK and look at all the system sounds you can change! Just tap any warning to assign tones. You can create profiles that are basically alert sounds for specific contacts by tapping the plus button. This will take you to the contact selection screen. However, so far, just tap the default profile to see a list of available sounds. You can play with all by default, and ToneFXs even gives you some new play. If you scroll down, you can even choose the usual default iOS values. From the main menu, tap Manage Tones to view and delete your tones. How sounds to your device ToneFXs supports the ringtones that you create using iTunes for all messages, as well as Winterboard audio threads downloaded through Cydia. You can also download the ToneFXsCreator app from The Efiko website for free to get tones to your iOS device. Click Download ToneFXsCreator to take into account the download page. Pull the platform version, follow the usual installation steps, and then start the program. Click Browse computer to upload the audio file, and then move the sliders or enter specific times to find start and end points. Click Preview to hear how the file will sound, and when you're done, click Send ToneFX to iPhone. I glados-esque audio file I created. Give the file a name, and then click OK. The file will be uploaded to Ephesus's servers and you will receive a text code. Now on the iPhone in ToneFXs, scroll down to Get a ToneFX. Your audio file will be downloaded quickly and painlessly and added to the ToneFXs library for use the way you want. Make Your Ringtones Shuffle Randomly You can easily shuffle your ringtones – or have your phone randomly choose from a different bunch – simply by selecting a few sounds for any warning. You will see that on the profiles screen it will tell X Tones as a sign that you have multiple selected ones. Now, you don't have to get tired of hearing the same song over and over again! Old-fashioned method If you don't want to spend money but you're really bored with default iOS text messaging sounds, you can manually change the sounds of text iOS system partition. (Note that it's not a weak heart, or for those who fear command lines.) Install OpenSSH from Cydia and restart the device. Nwo Nwo should be able to SSH on your phone from another computer on the network. username: root password: Alpine To log in, use the above credentials (of course, without quotes). Note: The first thing you should do is change the default password for security reasons. OpenSSH allows remote access to your phone, so make sure to change your password to avoid unauthorized use. It has been proven in malware attacks that you are sensitive unless you do so. Type the following command: passwd Then type the new password and type it again to confirm it. Now you're safe! You can now use the SCP command to copy files to your iPhone or iPod touch (but don't configure key file access). Go to the following directory: /System/Library/Audio/UISounds/ Files to be replaced, named sms-received1.caf, sms-received2.caf, ..., per sms-received6.caf. You can back up these files in case you want to restore the default values later. cp sms-received1.caf SMS-received1.caf.bak, and so on. Here's an example of the command I used to change files: scp mario_brick.aiff root@192.168.1.107:/System/Library/Audio/UISounds/sms-received5.caf Your files should . Aiff files that have an extension renamed to .caf – which you can do while SCPing – and you can probably just make them monaural instead of stereo. If you need to edit and convert these files, see our basic audio editing guide: Basic basics of Audacity instructions for use. After you change the default files, you can uninstall OpenSSH to avoid external access to the device, although if you decide to restart the process, you'll need to reinstall it. You can also use applications like iPhoneBrowser instead of SSH to replace the above files. For as little as $5, ToneFXs 2 is a really cheap way to manage all the sounds of your iOS system, not just your SMS and call alerts. It's much easier than doing things manually, and allowing you to mix sounds so that you won't be bored of them. Do you mix your ringtones? Have you found a better way to do this? Share your comments!
